Stability information

For substances and dosage forms that deteriorate easily under adverse storage conditions (such as occur in tropical climates), a warning should be given indicating that degradation is likely to occur in a humid atmosphere and that decomposition is faster at elevated temperatures. In such cases this warning is given in the section "Additional information".